COMMENTS ON

VIRGINIA SCHOOLS

Some comment should be made on a recent sampling of opinion in Virginia by Rex Brough on public schools, with the report that "although it is apparently common knowledge in other parts of the United States, many Virginians vigorously deny that educational attainments of the State as a whole are lower than they should be."

Our observation is twofold:

1. Mr. Brough has correctly reported Virginia public opinion.

2. This is in itself evidence of the low average educational level. There is an old oriental proverb about "he who knows not, and knows not that he knows not."

There can be no argument concerning Virginia's ranking in comparison with other states as to schools. The record is in black and white.

The facts are that:

Virginia ranked forty-first among the 48 states and District of Columbia as to average current expenditure per pupil in average daily attendance in the school year 1941-42, latest year for which data is available.

Virginia ranks forty-third in the percentage of its population 25 years old and over having completed the equal of elementary school.

And thirty-sixth in its population of hat age having completed high school.

However, it is not necessary to look far for an explanation of the fact that Virginians are by and large satisfied with the progress being made in public education. It is simply because our school buildings, equipment, teachers and methods are so much superior to those of a generation ago, that elder (voting) Virginians do not realize that progress has been even more rapid in other states, and that we still lag by comparison.

Oldsters, when they think of the school problem, recall old-time one room schools, running five months a year, and teachers getting a very hand-out for a salary. And these take one look at the current school set-up, and swell with pride at the wonderful things we have wrought!

Surely this is understandable, and no one will argue that Virginia is not doing more for its boys and girls than ever before as to educational opportunities.

What needs to be done, we believe, is to set up a program showing Virginians what other states are doing. For example, it would be well to prepare a "March of Time" - type newsreel on school programs of the various states and exhibit it in every community in the Old Dominion. This editor, for one, would like to see just what other states are doing that Virginia is not doing. It would help to jar us out of our complacency. Those who are hauling for better schools need more graphic ammunition than dull statistics.

CONVENTION AGENDA

Virginia Democrats will meet in Richmond today to nominate a candidate for the United States Senate.

After the stage is set, the roll of the counties will be called, and "favorite sons" will be placed in nomination. There will be vigorous applause as the county orators extol the the abilities of each candidate.

Then the roll of the counties will be called for a trial ballot. It is not likely than any candidate will poll over 250 votes on the first ballot.

Then the convention will recess for a night of good old time political maneuvering. The delegations will spend a night of hearing rumors that this or that candidate will withdraw in favor of this or that candidate; that this or that district will swing its votes to this or that aspirant or "dark horse."

It will be a grand and thrilling show; representa tive democracy at work!

May the best man win!

Note: This paper believes that Colgate Darden is the popular choice of the people, with Willis Robertson having some favor; that unless Darden agrees to accept the nomination, or in a real swing to one of the favorite sons develops early in the balloting Mr. Darden will be nominated; and, finally, we trust that the convention will not nominate the ultra-reactionary, arch conservative Howard Smith.

ANTI-RUSSIAN

PROPAGANDA

We see more and more evidence to support the theory that there are groups in America trying to fan dislike and hatred against our recent Russian allies. Unfortunately some of our leading newspapers and commentators have an anti-Russian phobia.

Cries of distrust greet most every move of Russia on the international stage. Yet, like moves by the British and our own country are hailed up.

Take the concentration of British and American warships in the eastern Mediterranean. Our newest aircraft carrier will put in a Greek port and her planes will put on a demonstration. Can anyone be so dumb as to call this a "good will mission"? The object is to show the Balkans that we can back up our anti-Russian stand and are with the war-weakened British in their empire-holding efforts.

Imagine the stir that would be made in our press and by our commentators were a big Russian fleet, with carriers and bombers a visit Mexico, Cuba, and parade up and down the South American coast, lingering in Argentina. And if Russian imperialism paralleled that of Britain and America in the Orient and far Pacific.

Now we feel that circumstances warrant the backing of American prestige with demonstrations that we mean what we say and that we intend to remain a mighty power. Our ships have a right and a duty to sail the seas, and by and large American foreign policy has good intent. Our point is that we should not over-play every Russian counter move and fall for the theory that sooner or later we must fight Russia and it might as well be sooner. We live in an era of rough and tumble power politics, but let us not forget that our first duty is to struggle for peace.

VIRGINIA'S ANTI- LYNCH

LAW

From The Pittsburgh Press

Virginia has a horror of lynching, the late Carter Glass once told the Senate.

But, unlike many another state, Virginia did something about it. Under the leadership of Gov. Harry Byrd, now Senator Byrd, it enacted a drastic anti-lynching law as long ago as 1928. The story of that law, and its effect, is told today in Page 38.

Virginia did not merely make lynching murder, and empower the Governor to use the resources of that state to identify, apprehend and prosecute members of lynch mobs. It also provided that every member of a mob, or a cessory to a mob, that lynches a person is subject to murder charges. It says that any member of a mob that commits an assault or battery on a person without authority to law is guilty of a felony, punishable by one to 10 years in prison.

CHILD'S PLAY

Go roll your hoop, Junior—you're going into your second childhood even before you've finished with your first. All over the country we hear that you're blitzing kid brother's toy box and behaving like fugitives from the Baby Snooks program.

Bubble Boom — We've reported how you're always blowing bubbles at football games; now we hear that the bubble - blowing business has extended to school dances and parties. Lots of fun with those new gadgets, but, look out, there, that soapy stuff leaves spots and stains.

Pistol Packers—Horrestly, what next? Now our teenage wolves are brandishing water pistols. Squirt, spray us again and call us Drippy, if they don't look like Two-gun Bob Mitchum-ery dumped.

Marble Menace—You've salvaged your old marbles from the attic toy box and grab them to football games in tin cans, festooned with ribbons in school colors. What a racket when hundreds of you rattle your cans full of marbles to cheer on the home team. Whoever thought that one up, anyway?

What's Your Game?—These days it's kid stuff at teen parties — like parchesi, lotto, dominoes and tiddlywinks. More fun, more legs broken! A good alternative to dancing when there isn't a Kelly or Astaire in the crowd.

WISHING ON A STAR

The best way to find out who your favorite movie queens are is to ask you which one you'd like to resemble. If you had Aladdin's lamp (or would you rather have Cornell Wilde?) you'd ask the genie with the technicolor hair to make you look like these cinemaids.

Ingrid Bergman—Because she's so "natural" looking.

Jane Haver—Because she's every boy's pin-up dream.

June Allyson—Because she looks like the girl next door. (Where do you live, next door to June Allyson?)

Jeanne Crain — Because she's "sweet."

Lauren Bacall — Because she LOOKS. (Period)

Lizabeth Scott—Because she's the girl who put the "Hub" in "Hubba."

Well, if you can't look LIKE them you can look AT them. That is, if you haven't spent all of this week's allowance on Banana splits.

HERE'S HOW THEY TALK

* * * *

Walter Winchell.

Voice, high, shrill, loud and somewhat nasal, but especially well suited to the broadcaster's radio personality (off the air, he is quite soft - spoken). The dramatic vibrancy of Mr. Winchell voice is unique in radio, although something like it used to be heard in excited moments in the sports announcing of the late Graham McNamee.

Enunciation, fast, staccato at times, and very distinct. He seldom fluffs a word.

Style, extremely flexible and always entirely Winchellesque. The radio Winchell reflects his theatrical origin; whether he actually feels the emotions or not, he convincingly registers high indignation, low scorn, great self-righteousness, explosive wrath, stinging insinuation and burning sarcasm.

Note. These radio portraits do not measure all broadcasters by the same yardstick, for obvious reasons. Each subject is carefully appraised for his ability in his own particular sphere of radio activity. Whether one admires Winchell's radio personality or not, there is no denying that he performs with consummate skill the role which he has assigned himself. This speech portrait is based upon that fact.

Pronunciation, not as accurate as commentators of the less clamorous school. But his radio vocabulary is not extensive, and this lessens the possibility of more frequent errors.

During the broadcast checked for this article, United was pronounced "yoo-NINE-ted," the word ambassador ended with the sound of "dore," instead of the correct "der," and he placed that pernacious old "cow" in Moscow (the name rhymes with Roscoe).

Score: voice 21; enunciation, 25; style, 23; pronunciation, 19. Total, 90. Rating, very good.

JESUS AND SIN OF SPEECH

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:7; Matt. 26:59-75.

MEMORY SELECTION—Let my speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt, that I may know how I ought to answer every man. Col. 4:6.

God is truth, and he is the kind of life it is in him. Satan is the opposite (John 8:44) and the father of liars.

I. The Prohibition (Exodus 20:16).

This "thou shalt not" is for primarily with us, is, the telling of an untruth.

This is one of the [illegible] lying, because it is one [illegible] one against whom it is [illegible] ing his liberty, his [illegible] erty, or the destruction reputation.

It is obvious, however, commandment covers about whispering, backbiters and others listed in II Cor. 12:20).

II. The Purpose (Matthew 26:23-26).

Sometimes as one [illegible] tinuous stream of [illegible] from the lips of [illegible] apt to feel that it is [illegible] of careless talking [illegible] come a part of the [illegible]

There is, however, [illegible] behind the lies of [illegible] the world today—[illegible] church. Those who [illegible] the followers of [illegible] vices of the devil [illegible] with fellow members [illegible] Christian workers often [illegible] pear greater than [illegible] look greater than [illegible] ceit and lying. We [illegible]

III. The Punishment (Prov. 26:26-28; Matt. 26:75).

One lie leads to [illegible] another, and soon [illegible] digged a pit so big [illegible] and falls into it. [illegible] starts a great stone [illegible] it rolls back on [illegible] him. Yes, in due [illegible] up before the [illegible] (v. 26).

Then, too, the [illegible] others. No matter [illegible] —a half truth, or [illegible] deceive, or an out- [illegible] it bears awful [illegible] the one toward [illegible] ed, or whose name [illegible] (v. 28). Once started [illegible] possible to stop. [illegible] catch up with a [illegible]

But there is a [illegible] bitter fruitage of [illegible] the heart of the [illegible] "come home to [illegible] make the heart [illegible] who has a vestige [illegible] lioner left, miserable [illegible] sider Peter (Matt.

It is of the utmost [illegible] we stress before [illegible] people the awful [illegible] well as its sinfulness [illegible] decrit are up [illegible] in our day that [illegible] all right—if you [illegible] But the fact is, [illegible] caught by God [illegible] own lie.

IV. The Practice (Psalm 26:69-74).

Sadly enough, the [illegible] of the world seems [illegible] the minds and [illegible] Instead of being [illegible] worldly deflement [illegible] awful tendencies.

The great lie [illegible] and one of Satan's [illegible] is the falsehood [illegible] lous liberalism [illegible] essentially a denial [illegible] Testament Christianity [illegible] (v. 42) that if God [illegible] will accept him as [illegible] one who speaks [illegible] the example, he [illegible] leadership of the [illegible] denies him. His [illegible] clearly in mind [illegible] of the father of [illegible]

Someone has [illegible] great spiritual [illegible] is not the condition [illegible] church and determine [illegible] how [illegible] serve in the world [illegible] to do about it [illegible] gotten into the [illegible] worldliness [illegible] The members [illegible] they had gone [illegible] themselves [illegible] fellowshipped with [illegible] godly living.

The denials [illegible] almost unbelievable [illegible] one who had [illegible] lowship with [illegible] seen his glory [illegible] elation of the [illegible] is deceitful above [illegible] desperately wicked [illegible] it?" (Jer. 17:9).

10 of Every 12 Vets Occupied

Found to Be at Work or in School, According to the Employment Service.

WASHINGTON—Ten of every 12 veterans discharged by the end of June were at work or in school, U. S. employment service reports.

At the same time the American Veterans committee and the Veterans of Foreign Wars came out with job-aid programs and voiced fear that unemployment among veterans would increase sharply.

"For the third straight month the backlog of World War II veterans not at work has been reduced, notwithstanding continued discharges of servicemen from the armed forces," said Robert C. Goodwin, director of USES.

"About 3,000,000 have found jobs in the last four months. In June, for instance, 470,000 of the 490,000 male workers who entered nonagricultural employment were veterans.

"We hope, and believe, that this rate will continue through what we are convinced will be a nation-wide period of employment."

Goodwin said that 9,940,000 of 11,-610,000 veterans covered by a census bureau survey had found work and that 60,000 more were entered in schools or colleges.

See Rush by Fall.

The two veterans' organizations, however, predicted great numbers of unemployed veterans by late summer or fall if aid is not forthcoming. Charles G. Bolte, national chairman of AVC, said there are well over 1,000,000 unemployed veterans at present and that the number would go up to 3,000,000 by August.

Urging passage of the veterans employment and national economic development corporation act, Commander-in-Chief Joseph M. Stack of the VFW quoted Gen. Omar N. Bradley, veterans administrator, as saying 4,000,000 veterans would be unemployed by fall unless new jobs are created.

Referred to as the "veterans RFC," the bill is designed, Stack said, to provide new jobs and opportunities for veterans to ease displacing workers already engaged in production.

He said the bill would save the taxpayers billions of dollars by assuring a program of self-sufficiency which would lessen the dependency of veterans on public funds. Stack also suggested that veterans could help rebuild and modernize China and otherwise engage in foreign commerce which would enlarge American markets abroad.

Plan Broad Program.

The AVC approach to the problem is to develop a broad program of community action to find jobs for veterans. It will work through its 550 chapters throughout the nation and the USES. The AVC will stress on-the-job training to local employers as a means of making opportunities for the youths who went directly from school to war without obtaining any vocational experience.

As an example of how its program will work, Bolte mentioned the activities of William Goodman of Danbury, Conn., member of AVC's national planning committee.

"Goodman, a business man himself," said Bolte, "in co-operation with manufacturers and labor groups, canvassed companies in his area and got 133 employers to begin on-the-job training.

"Safeguards must be taken to assure that the on-the-job training program will not used unfairly, either as a racket for veterans who want to use it as a gravy train, or as a means for employers to have the government fatten their payrolls."

Wife Given Weight In Silver Dollars

MINNEAPOLIS. — The mortgage on the home of a Minneapolis couple was smaller by $2,286 because the feminine member of the pair weighed 165 pounds.

As a surprise for their 11th wedding anniversary, R. H. Zima of Minneapolis balanced his wife's weight with silver dollars. He rigged up a balance scales, seated Mrs. Zima on one end and then clinked silver dollars on the other end until the balance indicator pointed straight upwards. It took 2,836 dollar coins to balance Mrs. Zima's 165 pounds.

The immediate decision of Mrs. Zima was that the money be used to help pay off the balance on their home.

A Word of Appreciation . . . and a Suggestion, too!

We know how anxious you are to get your new Oldsmobile. And there's nothing we'd like better to do, right now, than to say to every Oldsmobile buyer: "Your car is here. Come get it!"

But frankly, it just isn't possible to do that. There still aren't enough new Oldsmobiles to go around. Due to shortages in materials and unavoidable limitations on production, the output of new cars still is behind schedule. And our allotments are far below the figures that we originally anticipated.

We want to assure you, however, that everything possible is being done, both here and at the factory, to get your car in your hands promptly. And we'd like to take this occasion to thank you sincerely for the patient and considerate way in which you have borne with us during this period of waiting.

Meanwhile, we have an important suggestion: Don't neglect the car you drive today.

The war has taught us all the importance of careful upkeep and regular service. While you're waiting for your new Oldsmobile, therefore, be sure to take advantage of our factory-authorized Oldsmobile service program. We are offering every kind of modern automotive service—from lubrication to major overhauls. Regular servicing of your car will safeguard your investment and assure you of safe, dependable transportation until that great day when your new Oldsmobile is here!
